This year's market: changes in store

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Yes, the West Sacramento Farmers Market is coming back.

First night of the season will be Thursday, June 6, reports Denice Seals, CEO of the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce. And that evening will bring some new stuff that Seals is pretty excited about. Most obvious is the location:

"The steering committee for the farmers market is really excited that the market is going to be moving onto West Capitol Avenue," Seals told the News-Ledger. "West Capitol Avenue will be shut down around city hall."

For the first two seasons, the local farmers market was held on a vacant lot behind Walgreens, on the other side of West Capitol. But for 2013, the market will move into the street in front of city hall at 1110 West Capitol Avenue. Drivers will be able to get into and out of the parking lot at city hall, but the boulevard will be shut down between those two driveways at city hall.

Also new to this year's market will be dinner for a hundred:

"It will be white linen table clothes outside," said Seals. "It will be a sit-down dinner for 100 people, prepared (the first night of the market) by city council member Chris Ledesma and Jess Milbourn, a chef at The Eatery. Everyone will be 'miked up.' The featured chef each time will be talking and educating folks about the produce they chose and everything."

A "foodie" favorite will be on hand:

"We'll be having food trucks this year at the market," she said.

Seals said the market will turn the focus of the farmers market more back to its roots.

"We are featuring some local farmers and creating the opportunity and connections between farmers and consumers," she said.

To buy tickets for the sit-down dinner at the market, or watch for other farmers market news, you can visit www.wsfarmersmarket.com.

Or, look for the West Sacramento Farmers Market on Facebook.

Denice Seals, CEO of the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce, chats with visitors to last year's local farmers market on opening day. This year, the market returns a bit later in the season, moves onto the street, and invites food trucks.

From the fire log—

West Sacramento firefighters (above) joined the CHP and ambulance units on Saturday morning, April 20, after a three-car accident on I-80. One driver had to be extricated, and a total of two people went to local hospitals.

In other city fire department news, crews responded to a structure fire on the night of April 22 at Hawaiian BBQ in the Southport Town Center Plaza.

"Upon arrival, light smoke and flames were seen through the front doors," reported the WSFD. "The cause of the fire was (that) an employee left the deep fryer on and covered the opening with a piece of cardboard." Damage was estimated at $7,500.

One DUI arrest at checkpoint

West Sacramento police checked driver's licenses and looked for signs of inebriation behind the wheel of each car passing through a checkpoint Friday night at Harbor Boulevard and Duluth Street. They announced the planned checkpoint in advance – the News-Ledger published an announcement on its website – but kept the location secret until near the 7 p.m. start time.

Officers staffed the checkpoint for several hours, counting 522 vehicles passing through.

The tally of citations, according to Lieutenant Tod Sockman of W.S.P.D.:

Four people were cited for driving without a license, four others were given field sobriety tests and one was arrested for driving under the influence. One car was towed from the scene.

Supported by a state grant, the checkpoint operation was part of a project to deter drunk driving.

Convicted for drug deal shooting

Yolo County District Attorney Jeff Reisig announced last week that on April 18, a Yolo County jury found 22-year-old Wendell Joseph Coleman of West Sacramento guilty of three counts of robbery and three counts of assault with a firearm. The jury also convicted Coleman of six enhancements for personal use of a firearm during the commission of those crimes.

According to the D.A.'s office:

On June 14, 2011, Coleman met with the victims Nick Gartiez, Darien Williams, and Max Williams to conduct a marijuana deal. The victims reported, and phone records confirmed, that the marijuana deal was set up through phone calls between the victim Nick Gartiez and Coleman. After multiple conversations and changed meeting locations, Coleman and his unidentified crime partner met with all three victims in the parking lot of an apartment complex located at 425 Maple Street in West Sacramento.

Coleman and his partner approached victim Gartiez about the marijuana transaction, left briefly, and then returned with guns drawn. Coleman and his partner robbed all three victims at gunpoint, taking their cell phones. When Gartiez refused to give up his property, Coleman's partner pistol-whipped Gartiez in the face with the gun and then shot him in the knee. Both Coleman and his partner fled the scene. Police contacted Gartiez a few minutes later and transported him to the UC Davis Medical Center for surgery to remove six bullet fragments from his leg.

Deputy District Attorney Amanda Zambor prosecuted the case, added the D.A.'s office. She praised the dedicated efforts of the West Sacramento Police Department, the District Attorney's Investigative Unit, the District Attorney's Victim Services Division, Yolo County and Sacramento County Probation Departments, and the Sacramento Sheriff's Department. "This was definitely a team effort by everyone involved in the case," said Zambor in a press release. "The countless hours of investigation and research, as well as the Victim Services Division working with the victims through numerous continuances, paid off in the end with a just result for all three victims."

Coleman will be sentenced on May 15 by Judge David Reed, who presided over the trial. He faces up to 25 years and 8 months in state prison.

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

I was talking to a friend the other day whose daughter is enrolled in an elite online school for teenagers that makes available to her additional classes she can't get in her regular high school. The goal is apparently to expose young people to advanced math, science, and literature classes and only the best and brightest are admitted. But as with all good things in life, there is of course a downside, and in this case it happens to be lots of additional (and very hard) homework.

"My daughter has been doing this for a number of years now," explained my friend, "and she is so burned out it is beginning to affect her health. She has met some very interesting teachers and fellow students, but she has finally decided that enough is enough. To tell you the truth, I'm burned out, too, from trying to help her with all of her extra homework every night. Plus I'm glad she's going to get to be a normal teenager again."

As our conversation continued about the pluses and minuses of endless homework and getting good grades I was reminded of a book I read quite a while ago entitled "The Millionaire Mind." The author had surveyed more than a thousand millionaires and he found that most of them had received C's and B's in school, not A's. He also learned that there was really no statistical correlation between SAT scores and grade point average, and economic achievement. In fact, he found that most millionaires were actually told somewhere along the line that they were not intellectually gifted or clever enough to amount to much. But the truth seems to be that hard work, not natural genius, is what most millionaires rely on to become successful. They also appear to be really good at finding a way to choose careers which match their abilities and interests.

The author James Baldwin once said, "We do not really trust educated people and rarely, alas, produce them, for we do not really trust the independence of mind which alone makes a genuine education possible." I also like something the South American educator Paulo Freire wrote, that for many of the children who go to our schools, "the hours that matter most, in terms of passion, high stakes, daydreams and ideas of justice, are hours that are sneaked in, unlicensed, and unpermitted."

So, for some kids, getting A's is something they do well and they need to be recognized for it, but for many others, classrooms are not where they flourish, and they do not need to be put down or humiliated because of it. In fact, for many of the best and brightest among us, traditional education is a form of pure torture. So the next time one of your children brings home a bunch of C's on his or her report card, before you hit the roof, you might want to reflect for a moment or two on the fact that you just might have a future millionaire on your hands.

Anyway, many years ago, my middle son, Paul, put this all into context for me with a little conversation we had that went something like this:

"It's all a crock, Dad, isn't it?" he asked me, looking up at me from a homework assignment he was working on.

"What's a crock?" I asked him.

"School."

"School is not a crock, Paul."

"Yes it is."

"Well," I said, "even if it is, you're not supposed to know it yet."

"But do you realize I've already put in eight years of school, and there's still five more to go."

"Nine," I quickly corrected him. "Don't forget, you've got to go to college, too."

"See, now that's exactly what I mean. This school thing never ends!"

"Trust me," I assured him, "it goes by faster than you think. So just do your best and try to keep those grades up."

"And that's another thing," he continued. "I overheard you telling Mom just the other day that grades and test scores aren't all that important to you. So how come I gotta keep trying to get A's and B's?

"Well," I said, "so I'll know you're not lazy or taking drugs, among other things."

"What?"

"Look, Paul, good grades don't tell me that you're smart. Real smarts is something which life will beat into you as you grow older. But good grades do tell me how you're doing in a couple of other areas which I think are real important."

"Like what?"

"Well, most kids who are getting decent grades are making an effort at being organized, they listen well to people who just might know something, like teachers and parents, they don't have a lot of spare time on their hands to get into trouble, and they actually flip through the pages of a book now and then. The written word actually can set you free, you know. Plus they're usually industrious and conscientious, which can take you a long ways in this world."

"Maybe so, Dad," said my young son with conviction, "but if you ask me, school is still nothing but one big crock!"

Most millionaires were actually told somewhere along the line that they were not intellectually gifted or clever enough to amount to much.

GUEST OPINION:

Yolo County: flooding bypass will cost ag

From Beth Gabor
County of Yolo

Proposals to increase the duration and frequency of flooding in the Yolo Bypass for fish habitat could cost the Yolo County economy almost $9 million annually from agricultural impacts alone, according to a report released by Yolo County.

The report, entitled "Agricultural and Economic Impacts of Yolo Bypass Fish Habitat Proposals," was primarily authored by researchers at the University of California, Davis. It analyzes 12 scenarios of potential Yolo Bypass flooding that were developed based on existing language in the Bay Delta Conservation Plan (the proposal to construct twin water supply tunnels around the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta) and the National Marine Fisheries Service's "Biological Opinion and Conference Opinion on the Long-Term Operations of the Central Valley Project and State Water Project" (June 4, 2009). Neither planning process has yet identified a specific project, but instead has proposed a range of potential options that served as the basis for the analysis.

The impacts of the scenarios range from an expected total annual loss to the Yolo County economy of $148,000 to almost $9 million. The report also indicates state and federal agencies could minimize impacts on agriculture and the local economy by limiting flooding to the winter months (November through February), only extending additional flooding when Sacramento River floodwaters fill the Yolo Bypass as part of the regional flood protection system, or by constraining flooding to a limited portion of the eastern Yolo Bypass.

"Yolo County and its residents have sacrificed financially to protect agriculture and open space because it is the right thing to do," said Yolo County Supervisor Jim Provenza in a county press release. "We are working with the state to explore opportunities to expand fish habitat, but any project must minimize impacts on existing agriculture and waterfowl habitat."

"We think it is possible to develop a project that is compatible with the farms and wetlands in the Yolo Bypass, but we are not there yet." said Yolo County Supervisor Mike McGowan" in a press statement.

Promoting fish habitat by additional flooding of the Yolo Bypass west of West Sacramento could cost the local agriculture industry up to $9 million, say Yolo officials

RC tennis takes crown -- again

From River City High School

For the 17th time in the past 18 seasons, the River City High School Tennis Team has won a league championship. Last week's 5 to 4 win at Cosumnes Oaks clinched the 2013 Sierra Valley Conference (SVC) title for the Raiders, bringing the total number of league championships in RC's tennis history to 19.

The visiting Raiders started off slowly, dropping both boys singles matches at Cosumnes Oaks, but Cindy Oseguera (6-4,6-3 at #1) and Lily He (6-4,6-1 at #2) came through in girls singles. It was a similar story in doubles as RC lost both boys doubles contests while getting wins from the girls pairs of Sarah Yang and Sonia Bola, 4-6,6-2,(10-2) at #1, and Nicole Melido and Julia Quenga, 6-0,6-0 at #2. With the league title on the line, the mixed doubles duo of Lina Vang and Phillip Dinh brought home the pennant with their 6-3,6-2 triumph.

Also last week, at the SVC Singles and Doubles Tournament, Michael Lee and Lina Vang won the mixed doubles championship to qualify for this week's Sac-Joaquin Section Tournament. Lee and Vang defeated teams from Cosumnes Oaks (10-2 in the quarterfinals), El Dorado (6-3,6-3 in the semis), and Vista del Lago (6-3,6-3 in the final.) Teammates Oseguera and Yang will be joining them at the Section tourney as they came in second place in the SVC girls doubles event. The defending SVC and Section girls doubles champs came up short in the final to a pair from Vista del Lago, 6-2,3-6,(7-10), but are eager to try to repeat their 2012 result in Stockton at the Section tournament.

Other results from the SVC Tournament: Edward Xu and Ben Gerelkhuu took fourth place in boys doubles while Matthew Tagupa and Muradan Chhay reached the quarterfinals. In mixed doubles, Amran Khan and Sonia Bola came in third place. Lily He reached the quarterfinals in girls singles and Nicole Melido won the girls singles consolation championship by defeating the top players from both Galt and El Dorado. In the boys singles consolation event, Phillip Dinh downed teammate Akshay Prabhakar in the final.

Next up for the Raiders, in addition to the Section singles and doubles tournament, are the Section Division III team championships. RC will play either Marysville or Highlands in the Round of 16 and a win will allow the Raiders to host a quarterfinal match on Monday, May 6th at 4pm against the winner of the Argonaut vs. Colfax match.

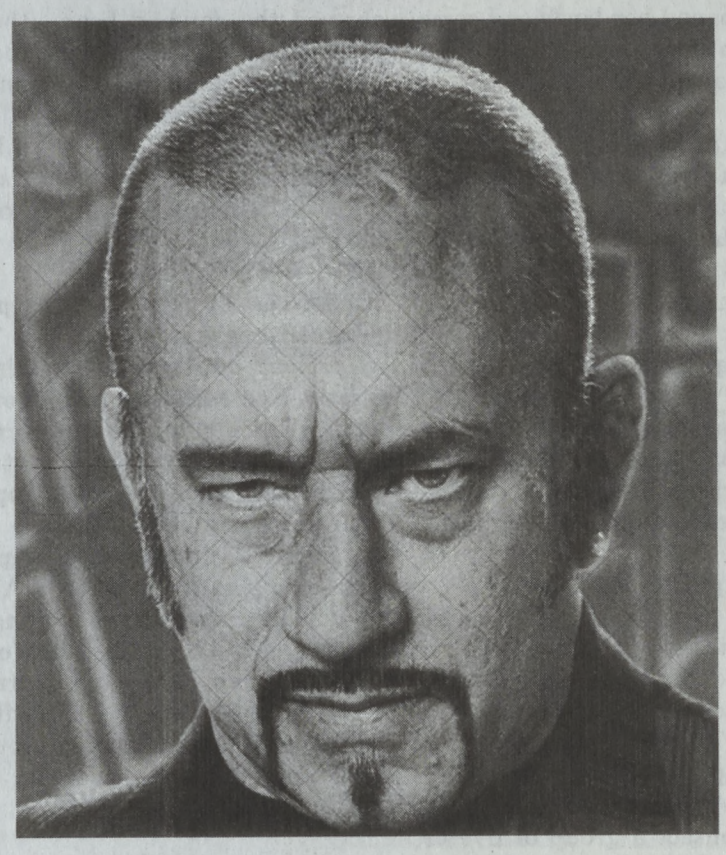
COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS
BY SAM STRUCKHOFF

NEW DVD PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Cloud Atlas" (R) -- In six stories set in vastly different places in time and space, a rich story of human experience and interaction unfolds. In history, modern days and the near and distant future, characters from each story are dimly aware of their connections to other people in the timeline. It's ethereal, thoughtful and kind of sentimental at its heart. Actors play different characters across the six stories, suggesting that old souls are living new lives.

Tom Hanks delivers fine performances in his different roles. The film is full of excellent visuals and special effects -- except for some of the makeup. Hanks especially looks odd in a few of his roles. It's hard to mask that famous face and make someone so recognizable look like he's from a different time and ethnicity.

"3:10 to Yuma" (Criterion Collection) -- This 1957 classic Western is now available on Blu-ray. Dan Evans (Van Heflin) is a dirt-poor frontier rancher who captures a deadly outlaw, Ben Wade (Glenn Ford.) While they wait for the train, Ben offers the poor rancher $10,000 to let him go. Wade's gang mount up to rescue their leader, while the townspeople get antsy about the outlaw in their midst.



Tom Hanks in 'Cloud Atlas'

This is one of those Westerns where mind games are more prominent than gun fights. There's plenty of bang bang shoot'em up, but the real tension comes from masterful movie-making. Watching the two main characters try to pick each other apart as the minutes tick down to 3:10 is like watching a spark sizzle its way toward a powder keg.

"Liz & Dick"(NR) -- This made-for-TV biopic about Liz Taylor (Lindsay Lohan) and Richard Burton (Grant Bowler) fails on a few levels. It begins with Lohan's dead-eyed stare going straight into the camera. She's no Liz Taylor, and doesn't seem to be trying, either. Which is sad, considering that the whole affair was about venerating an icon while reviving the burned-out starlet. It also misses the mark for tolerable campiness -- the last ditch appeal for movies like this.

"Tomorrow You're Gone" (R) -- Charlie (Stephen Dorff) is a small-time tough guy, fresh out of prison. His life was saved by a devilish criminal called The Buddha (Willem Dafoe). Now, Charlie has to commit a murder to repay his debt to the shadowy figure. Somehow, a porn actress (Michelle Monaghan) gets involved in the extra-thin plot. The movie hints that Dorff might be without all of his marbles -- but it's hard to care with a character this boring. Lots of grimacing and shadows, a little bit of partial nudity, not a lot of thrills.

"Carrie and Me: A Mother-Daughter Love Story"
by Carol Burnett
(Simon & Schuster, $24.99)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

Most people are aware of the amazing Carol Burnett and her extraordinary career. What many might not know is that Carol's daughter, Carrie, also was an incredible woman. Carrie was an actress, writer, musician and director whose zest for life was infectious. Unfortunately, that life was cut short by lung cancer. She died at age 38.

This inspiring new book documents their sometimes turbulent but always loving relationship. It is a combination of personal diary entries, photographs and correspondence, but what makes "Carrie and Me" so exceptional is its unflinchingly honest account of the sometimes bumpy journey they shared.

Carrie was only 3 years old when "The Carol Burnett Show" premiered in 1967. Despite the demands for Carol's time, she made certain she provided all of the necessary norms to properly raise Carrie and her two sisters. But when the show wrapped in 1978, there were signs of trouble.

For example, when Carrie's grades dropped, Carol hoped it was just her daughter going through an awkward junior-high stage. But she soon learned that Carrie had discovered drugs -- a major concern since Carol's parents had died of alcoholism. After several failed efforts at rehab, Carrie emerged victorious and once again took control of her life.

Carrie entered Pepperdine University, where she pursued acting, music and writing. She eventually found a cabin in Gunnison, Colo., where she continued her work, including several collaborations with her mother. In fact, it was in Colorado where she began work on "Sunrise in Memphis," a story about a girl's road trip through the South and a cowboy she meets along the way. It's also when her health began to decline.

Burnett writes: "I can honestly say that just about everyone who knew Carrie loved her. Maybe that's because she loved them right back." Those few words sum up the relationship she had with her daughter, and is a fitting tribute.

The Kitchen Diva BY Angela Shelf Medearis

THE KITCHEN DIVA
By Angela Shelf Medearis

Start Mother's Day in a Special Way

Throughout the years, my favorite Mother's Day gifts have always been the ones that are hand-written and homemade. This year, I'm looking forward to another one of my husband's special breakfasts. Michael's kitchen skills are limited to coffee and egg dishes. I don't drink coffee, but I love the way he makes breakfast. It makes Mother's Day extra special.

The recognition of motherhood has its roots in the spring festivals and celebrations of the ancient Romans and Greeks. The tradition continued with the advent of organized churches and honored Mary, the mother of Christ, during the fourth Sunday of Lent. Later, Mothering Sunday, an English holiday, was created to celebrate all mothers.

The tradition of a special holiday just for Mother's began in the United States more than 150 years ago. In 1872, Julia Ward Howe, author of The Battle Hymn of the Republic, began organizing an official mother's day on June 2 to celebrate peace and as a protest against the futility of one mother's son killing another during the Civil War. This more political observation of mother's day soon died out.

Later, Anna Reeves Jarvis wanted to raise awareness about the poor health conditions in Appalachia. She started "Mother's Work Day Clubs" to improve the sanitary conditions in towns in both the North and the South to control a typhoid outbreak in both Union and Confederate encampments. Reeves also began a "Mothers' Friendship Day" to reconcile families divided by the Civil War.

In 1905, after Jarvis death, her daughter, Anna M. Jarvis, began a campaign to recognize her mother's work and to honor her memory. Her mother had once said that "I hope and pray that someone, sometime, will found a memorial mother's day. There are many days for men, but none for mothers." During a church service in 1908, she began handing out her mother's favorite flower, a white carnation, along with pink or red carnations to honor mothers who are still alive. She also lobbied President Taft and President Theodore Roosevelt to start a national holiday.

It took several years, but on 1914, President Woodrow Wilson signed a bill recognizing Mother's Day as a national holiday. The House of Representatives also adopted a resolution recommending that officials of the federal government wear white carnations on Mother's Day.

Over the years, Anna M. Jarvis became violently opposed to the commercialization of Mother's Day. "I wanted it to be a day of sentiment, not profit." She was arrested for disturbing the peace during a public protest in 1923 and fought to stop the sale of flowers.

While Mother's Day has become one of the most popular days to send flowers, dine out and make long-distance calls, Anna M. Jarvis' original mission to honor and recognize the contributions and sacrifices made by mothers should not be forgotten.

Make sure your Mother's Day starts off in a special way with this delicious breakfast recipe for an Oven-Baked Denver Omelet!

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF THELMA CAMPBELL
CASE NUMBER PB13-67

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of THELMA CAMPBELL, THELMA YEN SOON CAMPBELL:

A Petition for Probate has been filed by Janelle Brotherton in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

The Petition for Probate requests that Janelle Brotherton be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows: May 21, 2013, at 8:30 a.m. in Dept. 15, Superior Court of California, County of Yolo, 1100 Main St., Suite 300, Woodland CA.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a "Request for Special Notice" (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A "Request for Special Notice" form is available from the court clerk.
